

Perdita Fraser

Perdita Fraser is an experienced director, board advisor and angel investor in the cleantech SME/start-up industry in the UK and the US, principally with companies and entrepreneurs commercialising new technology. She has held board roles across the private, public and third sectors, building on her experience in advisory, risk management and capital raising as a former investment banker with JP Morgan.

She acts as a business mentor for social enterprises and businesses in Edinburgh, Inverness and London. Her specific focus has been financial sustainability and building cross-sector partnership between public, private, third and international organisations.

She is a board member of the Big Lottery Fund and has been involved for over 25 years with several youth/social mobility charities including Access Aspiration and Rugby Portobello Trust. Her commitment to good governance and diversity has led to a variety of roles with Business Mentoring Scotland, Changing the Chemistry and Women On Boards. She is currently leading a diversity initiative with the UK Cabinet Office aiming to increase diversity on public sector boards, and she sits as an independent panel member for UK government public appointments.

She was named as one of the “100 Women to Watch” on the female FTSE Board Report 2015 compiled annually by Cranfield University. Perdita is a graduate of Edinburgh University and is a Fellow of the RSA.
