

Ruth Girardet

Ruth is an executive and leadership coach with over 20 years of professional experience in the field of corporate responsibility and corporate ethics. She has worked at senior management levels in the corporate and charity sectors and regularly advises Boards on matters of ethics and corporate culture.

Ruth grew up in Berlin and studied Philosophy, Politics and Economics at the University of Oxford. She also holds a degree in Social Sciences from Humboldt University in Berlin, and a degree in Applied Ethics from the University of Leeds. From 2007 to 2013, Ruth was the Group Corporate Responsibility Director at Tesco Plc, formulating company strategy across a wide range of governance and ethical issues. She then went on to become CEO of the criminal justice charity Just for Kids Law from 2016 to 2018. For the past decade, she has also been working with Aspen Institutes in the UK and across Europe to deliver the Aspen Executive Leadership Seminar. Prior to joining Court, Ruth has been a Member of Council at the Open University since 2014.
